

FRENCH PRINCE NETS MILLIONS BY SWINDLE

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, Jan. 23.—An alleged swindle estimated by different newspapers to amount to from 3,000,000 to 10,000,000 francs, was disclosed yesterday in the arrest of Philippe Simeoni, of Italian origin, and Prince Henri de Brogli-Revel, M. Simeoni was accused in 1910 of swindling the German prince, Frederick Carl Hohenlohe-Oehringgen, out of 500,000 francs.

The case was settled out of court, but Simeoni was sentenced to six months in prison for fraudulent bankruptcy. Afterward he founded the Comptoir des Valeurs Industrielles, which was a stock broking bank. Prince Henri de Brogli-Revel was placed at the head of the institution as its president, Simeoni taking the title of manager.

At the outbreak of the war customers of the bank demanded their money. Simeoni pleaded the moratorium and put the bank into liquidation, provoking many complaints, one of which alone alleged a claim of 1,600,000 francs.

The police report that not a sou remained in the bank when they searched it.

"Oh Look!

I can eat 'em all—they won't hurt me! That's because they're made with Calumet—and that's why they're pure, tempting, tasty, wholesome—that's why they won't hurt any kid."

BRITAIN LEASES MERCHANT SHIPS

ENTENTE ALLIES TIE UP THE ENTIRE TONNAGE OWNED BY GREECE

(By Associated Press.)

ATHENS, Jan. 23.—The cabinet today discussed at length a British proposal to lease the Greek merchant marine. It was decided to take measures to assure the retention of the number of ships necessary to provide the foodstuffs which Greece requires.

According to a high official, two considerations already have put Greek shipowners in the hands of the entente—namely, coal and insurance. The latter, it was pointed out, might be secured in the United States, but the former, according to this authority, was sufficient to induce owners to accede to the proposals of Great Britain.

The Moral of the Story.

Professor John Spencer Bassett, author of "A Life of Andrew Jackson," in one of his lectures at Smith college, repeated a well known story in regard to Stephen A. Douglas, closing with a moral which aroused peculiar interest.

Douglas, as the narrative runs, was once sitting in a profound sleep in the corridor of the capitol when Adeline Cutts, a Washington belle, passed by. She did not know the sleeper, but was struck with compassion on seeing such a splendidly intellectual face under such conditions, and, stooping down, laid her handkerchief over it to protect it from the flies. Douglas on awakening found the handkerchief, sought the owner and eventually married her. There was a pause, and then the professor added: "Young ladies, the moral of this story is, have your pocket handkerchief marked."

PESTS THAT LIVE ON PESTS.

Tiny Scorpion-like Crabs a Deadly Foe to Houseflies.

To the naturalist or to any one accustomed to observe nature closely the fact is apparent that the problems of existence are proportionately the same in every form or stratum of life. Even the common housefly, which seemingly has nothing else to do but to crawl lazily over whatever is left uncovered and then go happily on its way, doing its best to bring about an affiliation between the clean and the unclean, occasionally meets its Nemesis in the form of a tiny crablike creature which attaches itself to the fly's legs.

These little creatures are known to the scientists as pseudo scorpions, or cheilids, says the Popular Science Monthly. They may sometimes be found between the leaves of old books that have stood unused for a long time and also beneath the bark of trees and in mosses.

Although they are called false scorpions, they resemble the true scorpion closely in general structure except for their minute size. But they have no poison gland as the true scorpions have. They attach themselves to other insects also, but they seem to be the special pest of the houseflies. Scientists suppose that they seize the fly's leg and hold on until the fly dies, either worried or frightened to death by the undesirable presence. When the fly is dead the little creature feeds on the body.
